“ Hey baby, its been two whole months now and its still killing me. This has been the worst week ever. I have cried and talked to you all week long. I miss you so so much and I have really needed you as well. I know you can see whats going on and whos doing what so I dont even have to explain. Like we always say its a damn shame how some people act. Me and Joseph see your shadow in the dining room all the time and I know you are here. I have felt you ever since I came home from the hospital from seeing you. Its so sad that we were in the perfect place in every possible way and there was absolutely nothing holding us back from being sych a happy family. We had nothing. But we had it all. We got rid of all our problems and moved on and our lives as a complete family was the only thing we were going to enjoy. But then you were gone. Together and apart several times the loves was always there for thirty one years. And we get rid of the baggage and end up with rwo and a half months!!! That wasn't enough time to be so happy. I worked my whole life to provide for everyone and take care of the sick people in my whole family and you were taken too soon. I know that you're not hurting anymore. Thats the one thing that gives me peace cause I know you suffered the last year of your life. But I guess its just the selfish part of me misses you so much and wishes you were still here. God knows how much I miss you. I cant say your name without losing it right now. I love and miss you with all my heart baby. Until we meet again please continue to watch over me and please dont forget about me... your wife, your friend, yor partner in crime. And your confidant. Sam miller
