“ I remember babysitting my little cousin! I remember one time she wanted some cereal and I said, “ no Brittany, dinner will be here soon!” Well, that didn’t stop her lol! I had done gone on with cleaning up or whatever I was doing in hopes that she would forget about wanting the cereal. Nope. It had gotten too quiet. And when I walked into that kitchen she was eating cereal and smiling so big, and there was a bowl and spoon on the table. The whole box of cereal and entire gallon of milk poured out through out all of the kitchen. I was a teenager and this would usually have made me upset because I was left in charge and knew I had to clean. But the look on her face and her big beautiful smile even when she was 5.... all I could do was giggle and smile too! It touched me for a life time because many years later, 3 kids of my own later, you know, they all went and tried to get their own cereal around about the same age she was when she did it!!! It made me think of her! She continued to teach me even if she did not know it to be patient and slow to anger with my very own kids. She was just like my kids only she got to stay child like in her mind and THAT is so very precious and she will always be in my heart ❤️ I’m coming to dance for Jesus in heaven with you love!
