“ Charles would drive his Polaris ATV through our yard and make sure everything was o.k. He made a sitting and thinking bench by the small stream we had in the corner of our yard in the woods. He would come by and tell us many of his life time stories in a southern accent Georgia would be proud of. Several times he was in charge of feeding and watering the goats when we were away and he even spent time to water the new grass we had planted so it would not die. He loved to be busy and many times I would come home and my front lawn would have been mowed because he wanted to do something. We will all miss him.
