“ Deane was an independent, hard-working woman with a generous spirit. She taught (or tried to teach) me to drive a riding lawnmower, to freeze corn, to find a bargain, and to find the courage to start a home improvement project all by myself. Deane was a fierce woman, a multilayered woman who worked to empower herself and inspire others. She was so brave and courageous. Deane shared her home with many people throughout her life. She had a nurturing nature towards everyone around her. She made sure everyone had a place to stay and plenty of food to eat. She worked as a house mother at Georgia College, and I am sure all of those kids gained at least 10 pounds while they were in her care. Deane was funny and loud. She would say, “huh” after you told her something, like she couldn’t hear you, but if you whispered something, she’d said, “I heard that.” She also liked to use the word, “whatever”. I can still hear her yelling, “Fundee, Daaavid, MaaRissssa.” Deane was stubborn, independent, loving, caring, and generous. I was blessed to know and love her. “The River” will never be the same without her.

“ Deane was so much fun to talk to and go to Macon with. We would go by the beauty supply store and then have lunch. She was a good person, wonderful beautician and business woman. rip Deane

“ Fundy and David,
I am so sorry on learning about Dean's passing. She was a remarkable woman.
I remember her calling you home each evening, "Fun-DEE!". and I remember you would drop whatever you were doing and head home on the run.
I also remember, years ago, she helped me with a school paper I had to write about Milledgeville. My mom and dad were stumped and said "Go ask Dean". I showed up out of the blue and she sat down next to me and took the time to give me some pointers. I'll never forget that.
