“ My sweet, precious Daddy. Where did all the years go? How did they bring us to this point, here. Your life meant so much to me, you're existence . Just you. It hurts just to know, you're not alive and breathing on this Earth. I've muddled, we've all muddled, I just miss you. I miss you so bad. I love you, I'm trying, I hope you know.

“ It's been three long years of without you. Three long years of pretending you're away at work somewhere. Three long years of trying to remember your voice, your humor, your embrace. I will always love you Daddy, I will always miss you. You were always the best you could be with the tools in life you were given. I thank GOD, I am your daughter. I was not just a child, I was your Daughter. I was privileged to be there when you took your last breath, as excruciating as it was, it was beautiful. I love you Daddy, you'll never be forgotten. I miss you terribly. There are days that are just too much. You'll forever be my sweet, precious, Daddy. Don't you ever forget it. Love always, your Bri.

“ I miss you Daddy. My heart is so heavy. Things are so sad, early mornings hurt my soul. When you left, you took half of me with you. I miss that sweet grin, that one of a kind laugh, and most of all I just miss YOU. You were my rock, my person. You accepted me for me and thought I did no wrong. Now, that is gone, I'm not perfect to anyone else, I'm no longer your sweet little innocent baby who could never make a mistake. We were basically the same person. We are both quiet people, of few words, but yet have great personalities, would do anything for anybody, even for a stranger, don't like emotions, we even ate our hamburgers the same way. My identity seems to be lost. I miss just sitting with you all those nights, you waking up at 2:00 a.m. thinking it was time to get up, wanting coffee and telling me how awful it was and you would teach me to make it. I will never understand any of this, your illness, losing you. I know I'm 36 and supposed to be a big girl, but I wasn't ready to lose you, I wasn't ready for you to go and face this world and life without my Daddy. How is anyone ever ready for that, especially as much as I love you. You know that though. Thank you for my dream on your 2 month marker, I woke up feeling like I had been with you somehow. I love you too Daddy, I'll miss you until I have no breath and see you again. Thank you for being you, for being the only grandfather my children knew, for caring, for loving, and for giving so much of yourself that you were literally working with cancer and didn't even know it to make sure your family was ok. My babies suffered a tremendous loss, but I know you talk to Jesslyn as she plays and pretends because she is always talking to her Papa Donnie on her play phone, she will tell me Donnie.... I will miss you until I have no breath and can finally see you again. Love always and always, your baby "Bri".

“ *Family of Donnie Burgoon:
I wish I had enjoyed a close association with Donnie. His mother, Christine, was my first cousin. Naturally I was closer to her and Edgar. I have very fond memories of them.
All of Christine's younger siblings I kind of grew up with and have always known, cared about and respected. I feel like I missed out on not knowing Donnie well. Living miles apart doesn't help.*

I'll keep the family in my prayers.

“ *The pain and sorrow I feel in my heart
Comes from us now having to be apart
As you drifted further away from me, I realized you were going where you needed to be You're among that special group of "13" now
I have to learn to carry on somehow
For everything you did and always making sure I was seen about
It was an honor and privilege to give that back to you no doubt
I love you now I love you then and for me that was the only way it ever could have been Rest in peace you wonderful man
For now I know you're in God's hands*

I love you.
