“ Moma,

I'm sitting here in rewind mode. It's been a long, long day. When I received that phone call this morning it was the last thing that I expected. I know that you lived a long hard life. But I must say, that since we moved you back to Milledgeville at the end of March, I haven't seen you cry or as me to please let you come home. Those words were always hard to hear. But now you've gone on home to be with Grandpa, Daddy, Memaw, Aunt Evelyn, Aunt Janice & Uncle Bill, and Tommy. I can just see all of you sitting around the table and everyone talking at once. Between the cigarett smoke and the coffee mugs running low and asking someone to make more coffee. The stack of cards are ready to be suffeled and everyone getting ready to play canasta'---just remind everyone up there - no cheating. After all----all of you are in heaven now with your wings just a fluttering.

I'm really sorry for making your life so hard these last few years, but it was all ment to be I guess. The boys will be in tomorrow along with all the other grandkids gathering around to give you a big send off. If I had't told you lately I love you. And "Thank You" for being my Mom. I'm just sorry I wasn't with you at the end. I hope you'll send me a sign to let me know that you'll forgive me for not being there. Please breath easier now and sleep peacefully. Keep a watch over my boys and my grandkids.

I miss you Mom.....Heaven has gained a very special angle today.##imported-begin##Lois Tidwell##imported-end##
