“ *Who will wipe away my tears?
Who will steal away my fears?
And who will help pick the pieces up when I am down?
What will I do without you around?*

*How will I move to the next day?
Who will right me when I have gone astray?*

*Death is coming to take its prize
He doesn't care about the hows and whys
Who's heart he breaks and who bows their head and cries*

*I would pay a pound of gold or more
To have death move from this door
Just a day just a day I plead
But death comes to even the score*

*Its not she that I pity
She's secured her place in that glorious city
Where the streets are paved with gold
And Jesus rules in all majesty*

*No its I that am left behind to search for solace
In the memory of my mothers face*

Oh death you linger and a fool of me you make You give no comfort for what you take

*So, death tell me what shall I do?
I stand here broken hearted before you*

*You took from me the hugs that will never be
The pat on the back, the gentle shove the laughs, the cries, oh death you have stolen from me*

I beseech you death, and you stand before me unmoved

*Unchallenged in all you do
And I look to the cross
And know
she defeated
You.*

“ Debra and family,

No words from us can ever mend your broken heart but know that our prayers and thoughts are with you. Take comfort in knowing that you were there for your sister when she needed you the most and from a place far better than this earth, she will forever watch over you.

Love,

“ There are no words of express my sorrow. My cousin has lost the love of his life and the world has lost a wonderful woman. I have a lifetime of happy times to remember and I know Benny and the boys will keep all the beautiful things that Gerri was close to their hearts forever. My love and concern is with all of you as I cry with you. Keep your eyes on the Lord. I know Gerri always did.
