“ Jimmy married my best friend Jacque. He and I couldn't be together 10 minutes but loved each other dearly. He was a stubborn honors man but with a heart of gold whenever you got to know him. RIP Jimmy. You will be missed greatly by the ones who were with you in your last days.

“ Two Memories...
Brother Jimmy was scared to death of Snakes. We used to tell the story of him rabbit hunting and walking up on a marshy Island of sand where he encountered one big Rattle snake. He jumped so high his feet never touched the ground until he had unloaded his five shots from his shotgun on that snake. Ever since then, he would jump when someone walked up from behind and either touched him or said Boo. I think that snake had 11 rattlers!
I don't think he ever went rabbit hunting again. Might be why he started fishing from a boat!
Jimmy loved to play jokes on people, Then laugh about it with them.

While fishing with me in a Jon Boat one time, I took Jimmy to my best fishing hole at Ms Carmichaels in Madison. After handing him a new rod and reel(I won in a tournament the week before) I said, this reel has never been fished with before. He replied I'll break it in for you. On his first cast he caught a largemouth bass that weighed 11.5 pounds. I told him it was pure luck and my reel. To which he said "But its my Damn fish."
We laughed the whole way home..

Memories with Brother Jimmy,
Rest in Peace Snake Charmer..
By Jay McDonald his loving Brother!

Jay I remember Jimmy telling the story about the snake. It always cracked Doyle and I up. I also am terrified of snakes. Doyle and I had good times with your brother. He was always smiling and joking. He and Doyle can once again be friends. RIP Jimmy one day I will see you both again. Delilah

*Thank you Delilah. Jimmy was Unique in many ways. But his sense of humor separated him from the rest. I envision him making Doyle and our departed siblings laugh again now.

“ When Jimmy was in His Teen Years and Dating, He would Pay Me 50cents to iron His Jean's. Back then 50cents would buy a coke and candy bar. Also I loved to listen to Him Play His guitar and sing. Love You Brother.

“ Jimmy was one of (9) siblings,of which 5 were boys and (4) were girls. Our family has lost four boys and one girl to heart failure. The remaining living Siblings,Ann and Jay,have had bi-pass surgery,while Milly and Cindy are on medication for heart problems. All (9) siblings are specifcly tied to Coranary Artery Desease(CAD) by Genetics passed down from our parents who also suffered from CAD. I know parents do not intentionally pass on Bad Genes. My Cardiologist told me "it's not what you do in this world ,it's what you were brought into this world with". Your Genetics. That can be our greatest Obstical or Blessing for quality of life.

Sure, you can improve longer survival by eating healthy and taking propoer medications.

But in the end,quality of life is not promised. Early diagnosis(of CAD) is Huge for quality of life. If you know a family member with CAD,encourage them to go to and listen to their doctors and take the medications. They will have better quality of life. I'm not saying Jimmy did not. Just the opposite. He lived to be 73. We only get one chance in life! Making the right decision on health issues is important. All the information is avaiable.

I know Jimmy is pain free now. Thank you Jaque for being kind to our brother throughout these difficult months. I know you have a special place in your next life because of the life of service you have lived in this life. Prayers to you and family members that remain in this world.

A Loving Brother,
Jay McDonald
