“ The best memories I have of Uncle JD was that he never failed to take us to Church on Sundays when we chose to go. And on the way back he taught us to drive. He made Sundays special to my brother and I and taught us what it was like to receive unconditional love. He took us bowling, he took us to play putt-putt and never failed to let us know how special we were. I remember the vacations in Savannah and Jekyll Island and how I always looked forward to his company. He was a great friend and mentor and I loved him dearly. I'm gonna miss you Uncle JD. I'll see you soon. Save a lane at the bowling alley for me. And get ready to be beat.##imported-begin##Mark A. Holland##imported-end##

“ Dennard was a kind and gentle man that loved God, his church and people. When he broke his shoulder and was in the hospital recently, one of the people caring for him remarked that she remembered riding the bus he drove in Macon. She stated that he was always kind to the passengers on his route.

As long as he could drive his car, he regularly made the trip from his home in Macon to attend church services at his home church in Gordon---but he also attended services and events at other churches. He loved music and especially liked to hear chimes played. He thoroughly enjoyed the fellowship at covered dish meals at church and his friends prepared food for him to bring to these events. He was so blessed to have good friends that checked on him, brought him food and took him shopping, out to eat, to get haircuts, to appointments, etc. Their care and kindness made it possible for him to remain in his home much longer than would have been possible without their help. Many thanks to the friends that cared for him for many years. Blessings to his friends for standing in that gap!

We will miss this kind, gentle man!###imported-begin##Gerald & Ethel Beck###imported-end##
