“ What I remember about first meeting Larry was his exceptional kindness when I was going through a divorce. I was lucky enough to work with him during my time with Russell Quarterman as we navigated the tricky waters of title examinations. Later, I would occasionally run into him at the courthouse. He always had a smile and a hug! I will miss him greatly. To his family, I know you know this but he was so loved by so many. I hope that brings some solace during this difficult time.

“ My sincere and heartfelt condolences to Lee and family on this devastating loss. Larry has gone on his next journey way too soon. I remember singing with Larry many a time at Marilyn's house(s), and the best of times at her place down off Jefferson Road. He liked Sheryl Crow, in addition to Cher! One time in particular, singing All I Wanna Do, such fun, such laughter. When he met Rob, all I could think was - what a great couple they were. Larry had THE best laugh. He tried not to take life too seriously, but maybe he did, more than we knew. He was a loyal, kind and highly entertaining friend, but watch out if you got on his bad side. I don't think Marilyn ever spoke to him again after he called her a big ole gooby girl! 🤔 Maybe they're hashing that out right now...He had a razor sharp wit, and could use it if provoked. Larry was sensitive, sweet, and so funny, SHUG! Glad I saw him a few times in the last few years - at Judy's, and with Lee at Marilyn's wake. Glad we got to talk and reminisce some. Never ever to be forgotten, rara avis. Prayers for peace.
