Mrs. Hankins was born on October 6, 1917 in Okmulgee, Oklahoma and grew up in the hardscrabble life of the Texas and Oklahoma oil fields during the Great Depression. She worked for many years as an office manager and bookkeeper in oil and petroleum accounting in various businesses in Oklahoma City, working full time until she was 85. Active in local Democratic politics, Ms. Hankins ran for various offices in her community and served the community with passion and enthusiasm. An avid sports fan, she followed her beloved Oklahoma Sooners wholeheartedly. She also followed the Atlanta Braves with equal enthusiasm. She was preceded in death by her parents, Fred Mussetter and Oma Mae Rider; her stepfather, Hugh Rider; brothers James Mussetter and Oliver Mussetter; and sisters Martha Ann Mussetter and Bettie Jayne Mussetter. Oliver and Bettie Jayne were killed in the New London School, Texas Explosion on March 18, 1937. This explosion killed over 300 students and teachers. Ms. Hankins mourned their loss throughout her life. She was married to the late Alford (Al) M. Evans and the late John Boone Hankins.

She is survived by her daughter Judge Hulane E. (The Rev. Carl Buice) George of Milledgeville; sons Major (Retired) Milton Evans of Padre Island, TX, Brad B.
