“ I was thinking of Mrs. Dermond all day today, and I always will on this day every year--we shared the same birthday. I'll always remember her as Mrs. Dermond, and not Shirley, because she was the mother of my best friend, Keith. I used to spend a lot of time at their home, playing ping-pong on the patio, creating miniature golf courses in the desert next to the house, and playing all sorts of board games. When I went through my growth spurt, she was forced to hide some of their more fragile things because I was such an awkward klutz I unintentionally broke several things. She was always so very nice to me, and I will always remember what a kind soul she had. 8/8 . . . 12/12 . . . 7/7
