“ He taught me so much. I started out bandaging wounds on his legs after one of his hospital stays. But it wasn't long before he said he had to get out of the bed and figure out a way for him to get in his truck by himself. So he had me build platforms that he could roll his wheelchair on to get into his truck. One at the house, one at the shop. Next thing you know he's showing me how to build doors. The old fashion way. Mortise and tenon joined, no nails, no screws. He really enjoyed teaching me to. He was one heck of a man. He was one of the most head strong, independent and stubborn man I've ever known. I will miss him dearly and forever treasure the memories and our friendship. May you rest in peace until we meet again.
