“ My Mama, My Mama, no more phone calls at 7:00 am, but sleep alludes me so time does not matter. I worry for Daddy all day, every day. He knows no life exists without you. We just miss you, your smile, your laughter, your energy for life. Where is my best friend, the one who always loved me with no thoughts of right and wrong. You were my tigress (that word I described but someone knew no better). I have to change my life too now, I've seen true love and I want it, I will try. Be with me always mama, no more will I stay and take the insults of one imperfect human consistently to another. You taught me better. No more will I listen to the words of people who only care for your things and never knew you. We will find each other again, a mother and daughter are bound together always. Goodbye my Mama, my Mama
