“ Nana always made sure I had Lays potato chips and sprite to snack on (don't tell your momma!) and I remember watching Shania Twain music videos on her TV in the kitchen with her. And dying her hair when she'd come visit us in Missouri. There will always be a special place in my heart for my Nana.

“ *The moment you left was a quiet despair,
A hush fell upon me, the world seemed unfair.
No goodbyes were spoken, just a lingering chill,
Yet echoes of your love continue to thrill.*

*In daydreams, I find you, a whisper away,
Each tear that I shed is the price that I pay.
Though absent in body, your spirit still lingers,
In memories cherished, held tight in my fingers.*

I love you, Mom.

“ I'll never forget picking up pecans from the yard for her amazing pecan pie. She taught me how to cross stitch. And we always had a real Christmas tree.
